booth, which was all in yellow. The decorations were small Chinese oranges, the tables being draped in yellow cheese-cloth and decorated with oranges. Mrs. Manny Phillips, who was on duty here, with her assistants, Mrs. A. S. Murphy, Misses Belle and Lucy Mutch, Miss McStocker, Miss Rhodes, Miss Thelma Murphy and Miss Legros, wore white gowns, with yellow hats and yellow chrysanthemums, with lilac leis.

The ice cream booth was all in white, with huge blocks of ice decorating the tables at the corners, which were covered with white cloths strewn with asters and ferns. It was shaded by a large Japanese umbrella, from which depended paper lanterns, the lanterns also decorating the outer sides of the tables. The effect at night was particularly pretty. Over this table Mrs. James Dougherty presided, assisted by Mrs. Emmet May, Mrs. Clifford High, Miss Marian Roth and Miss McTherna. Their costumes were white, in keeping with the decorations of the booth, with chrysanthemums.

The booth at which natural flowers were sold was a veritable fragrant garden. Under the red and white marquee, suspended from a slender cord, was a dazzling array of leis, those of white, scarlet and pink carnations, with the gorgeous yellow lilac, predominating. The tables were piled with many-hued masses of ferns, violets, orange marigolds, purple, white and lavender asters, with quantities of roses, white, cream-colored and crimson. On duty here were Mrs. M. E. Grossman, Misses Ada Mutch, Muriel and Beatrice Campbell, Watty Holt, Irene Boyd, Rosie Herbert, Annabel Low, Ruth Bertelmann and Kauai Wilcox. They wore picturesque Spanish costumes, scarlet skirts with yellow bodices and sashes, and black velvet boleros with gold spangles.

The luncheon, which was served at one o'clock, was prepared under the management of Mrs. Blaisdell, who is famous for her catering and who, on this occasion, certainly justified her reputation. It consisted of cold ham, cold turkey, salad, sandwiches, brown bread, pork and baked beans, every item of which was delicious. It was said to have been one of the best luncheons ever served in Honolulu on a like occasion. Mrs. Whitehouse was hostess at the luncheon, her helpers being Miss McIntyre, Miss Harvey, Miss Lucas, Miss Jaeger, Miss Irene Dickson, Miss Ballentyne, Miss Spalding, Miss Harriet Young, Mrs. Paty and Mrs. Harrison. The distinctive feature of their costumes were their large paper hats, of yellow, red and green.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS.

In the marquee in which the lunch was served, Mrs. Alice Hastings, who was very handsome in a white gown, with a large black hat and a lei of lavender sweet peas, were peddling tables which were well patronized. Mrs. Hastings assistants were Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. George Beckley and Miss Mary Low. Beer was sold by Miss Dixon who was assisted by Mr. Clarence Waterman. Mrs. W. M. Graham had charge of the cigar stand, while Master Ray Graham, in a pretty page's costume of black and scarlet, helped in selling about the grounds.

The lanai, decorated with flags, was set apart for a Punch and Judy show, which was under the management of Mr. Arthur Knight, assisted by Mr. Guy Livingston, and was liberally patronized by the children during the afternoon.

THE LUAU.

The most artistic and characteristic of all the decorations, that which called forth the highest praise, was the lanai which had been constructed for the luau. It was thatched with branches of palm. From the roof depended bunches of green coconuts, while clusters of bananas with their rich leaves were effectively grouped at intervals, here and there. This was Mrs. Taylor's most effective designs. The tables for the luau were set out with all manner of native delicacies, and in calabashes, fish, broiled duck and countless native dishes too numerous to be mentioned. The first table was that of Mrs. Laura Mahelona, who has been the prime mover in founding the home. It was thickly strewn, as were the others, with ferns, brightened with masses of scarlet carnations in bowls. The attendants wore scarlet wreaths and leis. The second table, of which Miss Ellen Cathcart and her assistants had charge was in yellow and green, yellow lilac being used with excellent taste. The ladies wore leis of malle and lilac, with yellow chrysanthemums in their hair. Mrs. Lizzie Kinney's table was beautifully adorned with purple asters, violets and large pots of delicate mat-denhair. The leis of the attendants were green and purple.

The fourth table, that of Miss Rosalie Holt, was in pink and green, the paper serviettes having pink borders, corresponding in color to the decorations, as at the other tables. The leis and wreaths of the attendants were pink and green.

Mrs. Palko and her assistants, at the fifth table, had also selected yellow as their color, and it was as effective as that brilliant hue always is, and most becoming in wreath and lei, to its wearers.

The luau was not served until seven o'clock, and it was this part of the entertainment that was most interesting to the Congressional delegates amongst whom sixty tickets had been distributed, with the compliments of the reception committee for the island of Oahu, a very graceful and public-spirited act.

The grounds in the evening were crowded, the music and dancing being very enlivening. The manager and her assistants are well-entitled to congratulations upon the entire gratifying results of the undertaking, which has involved much work and thought from all concerned. It guarantees the speedy realization of the object for which it was planned.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Thurston have issued invitations for a seven o'clock luncheon on Thursday evening.

Mr. Bruce Cartwright, Sr., entertained at dinner last Thursday night. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Wilder and Bruce Cartwright, Jr. Afterwards they attended the Mackenzie Gordon concert.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford B. Dole have closed their town house and have gone to their seaside villa, "Aqua Marine," at Waikiki for the summer. Mrs. and Miss Witherie, who are still visiting Mrs. Dole, expect to return to the Coast next month.

General J. W. Keifer gave a delightful dinner party at the Young to a few friends last Friday night. Those who participated were Mr. and Mrs. Frances Gay, Hon. E. Y. Webb, Miss Rose from Kauai, Senator G. H. Piles, Chas. McGarvin.

Mrs. J. Walter Jones was the guest of Mrs. Albert Waterhouse on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatch were the hosts last night at a dinner given by a number of the visiting Congressmen and their wives. Those present at the affair were Congressman and Mrs. Jones, Congressman and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Congressman Davidson, Senator and Mrs. J. Dowsett, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Thurston, Congressman Campbell, Alexander Hawes and Miss Jessie Kaufman. Mr. and Mrs. Hatch will also entertain a number of the other members of the Congressional party tonight.

Miss Lucy Peabody has given up her Manoa Valley house for the summer, and has taken a cottage at Waikiki.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Young, had more reassuring news yesterday from their daughter, Mrs. Howard.

One of the social events of the season will be the farewell dance to be given at the Seaside on Thursday next for the Congressional party. The place will be decorated as never before, while the electric lighting will be of the most brilliant description. No more fitting farewell to Hawaii's guests could be given than that in preparation by Manager Church.

Dr. Sheldon of the cableship Restorer gave a pretty tea on Friday on board which was greatly enjoyed by his fortunate guests.

Major and Mrs. S. Russell, who had rented the residence of Mrs. Mabel Wing Castle in College Hills, will leave shortly for Panama, to which point Major Russell has been unexpectedly ordered.

A very happy innovation was introduced at the Seaside on Thursday evening, when the Royal Hawaiian band played, by clearing the dancing lanai, thus enabling the public to double enjoy Captain Berger's music. Although there were counter attractions at the Orpheum and Opera House yet one of the largest crowds that ever gathered at Waikiki was present. So great was the enthusiasm that when the band stopped playing at ten o'clock, a subscription was raised and a number of the musicians kept until the last car.

Miss Charlotte Gillet who has been visiting her sisters, Mrs. Archie Young and Mrs. A. Berg, has left for her home in Detroit, having made many friends in Honolulu.

On Tuesday Mr. Munter of the Manning gave a farewell dinner to ten of his friends at the Seaside, as he expected to leave the next day on the Alameda for San Francisco on detached duty.

Miss Anna Paris, who has been visiting in Kona, has taken a bungalow in Manoa road. Miss Paris has been ill but is recovering.

Mrs. M. A. Gonsalves gave an elaborate luau last Monday in honor of her sister Mrs. A. G. Correa, who left for San Francisco by the S. S. Alameda.

Mrs. Allan Herbert, who has been seriously out of health for some time, sailed for San Francisco on the Alameda, Wednesday, where she will be under the care of a specialist. Her many friends here are hoping to hear of her speedy recovery.

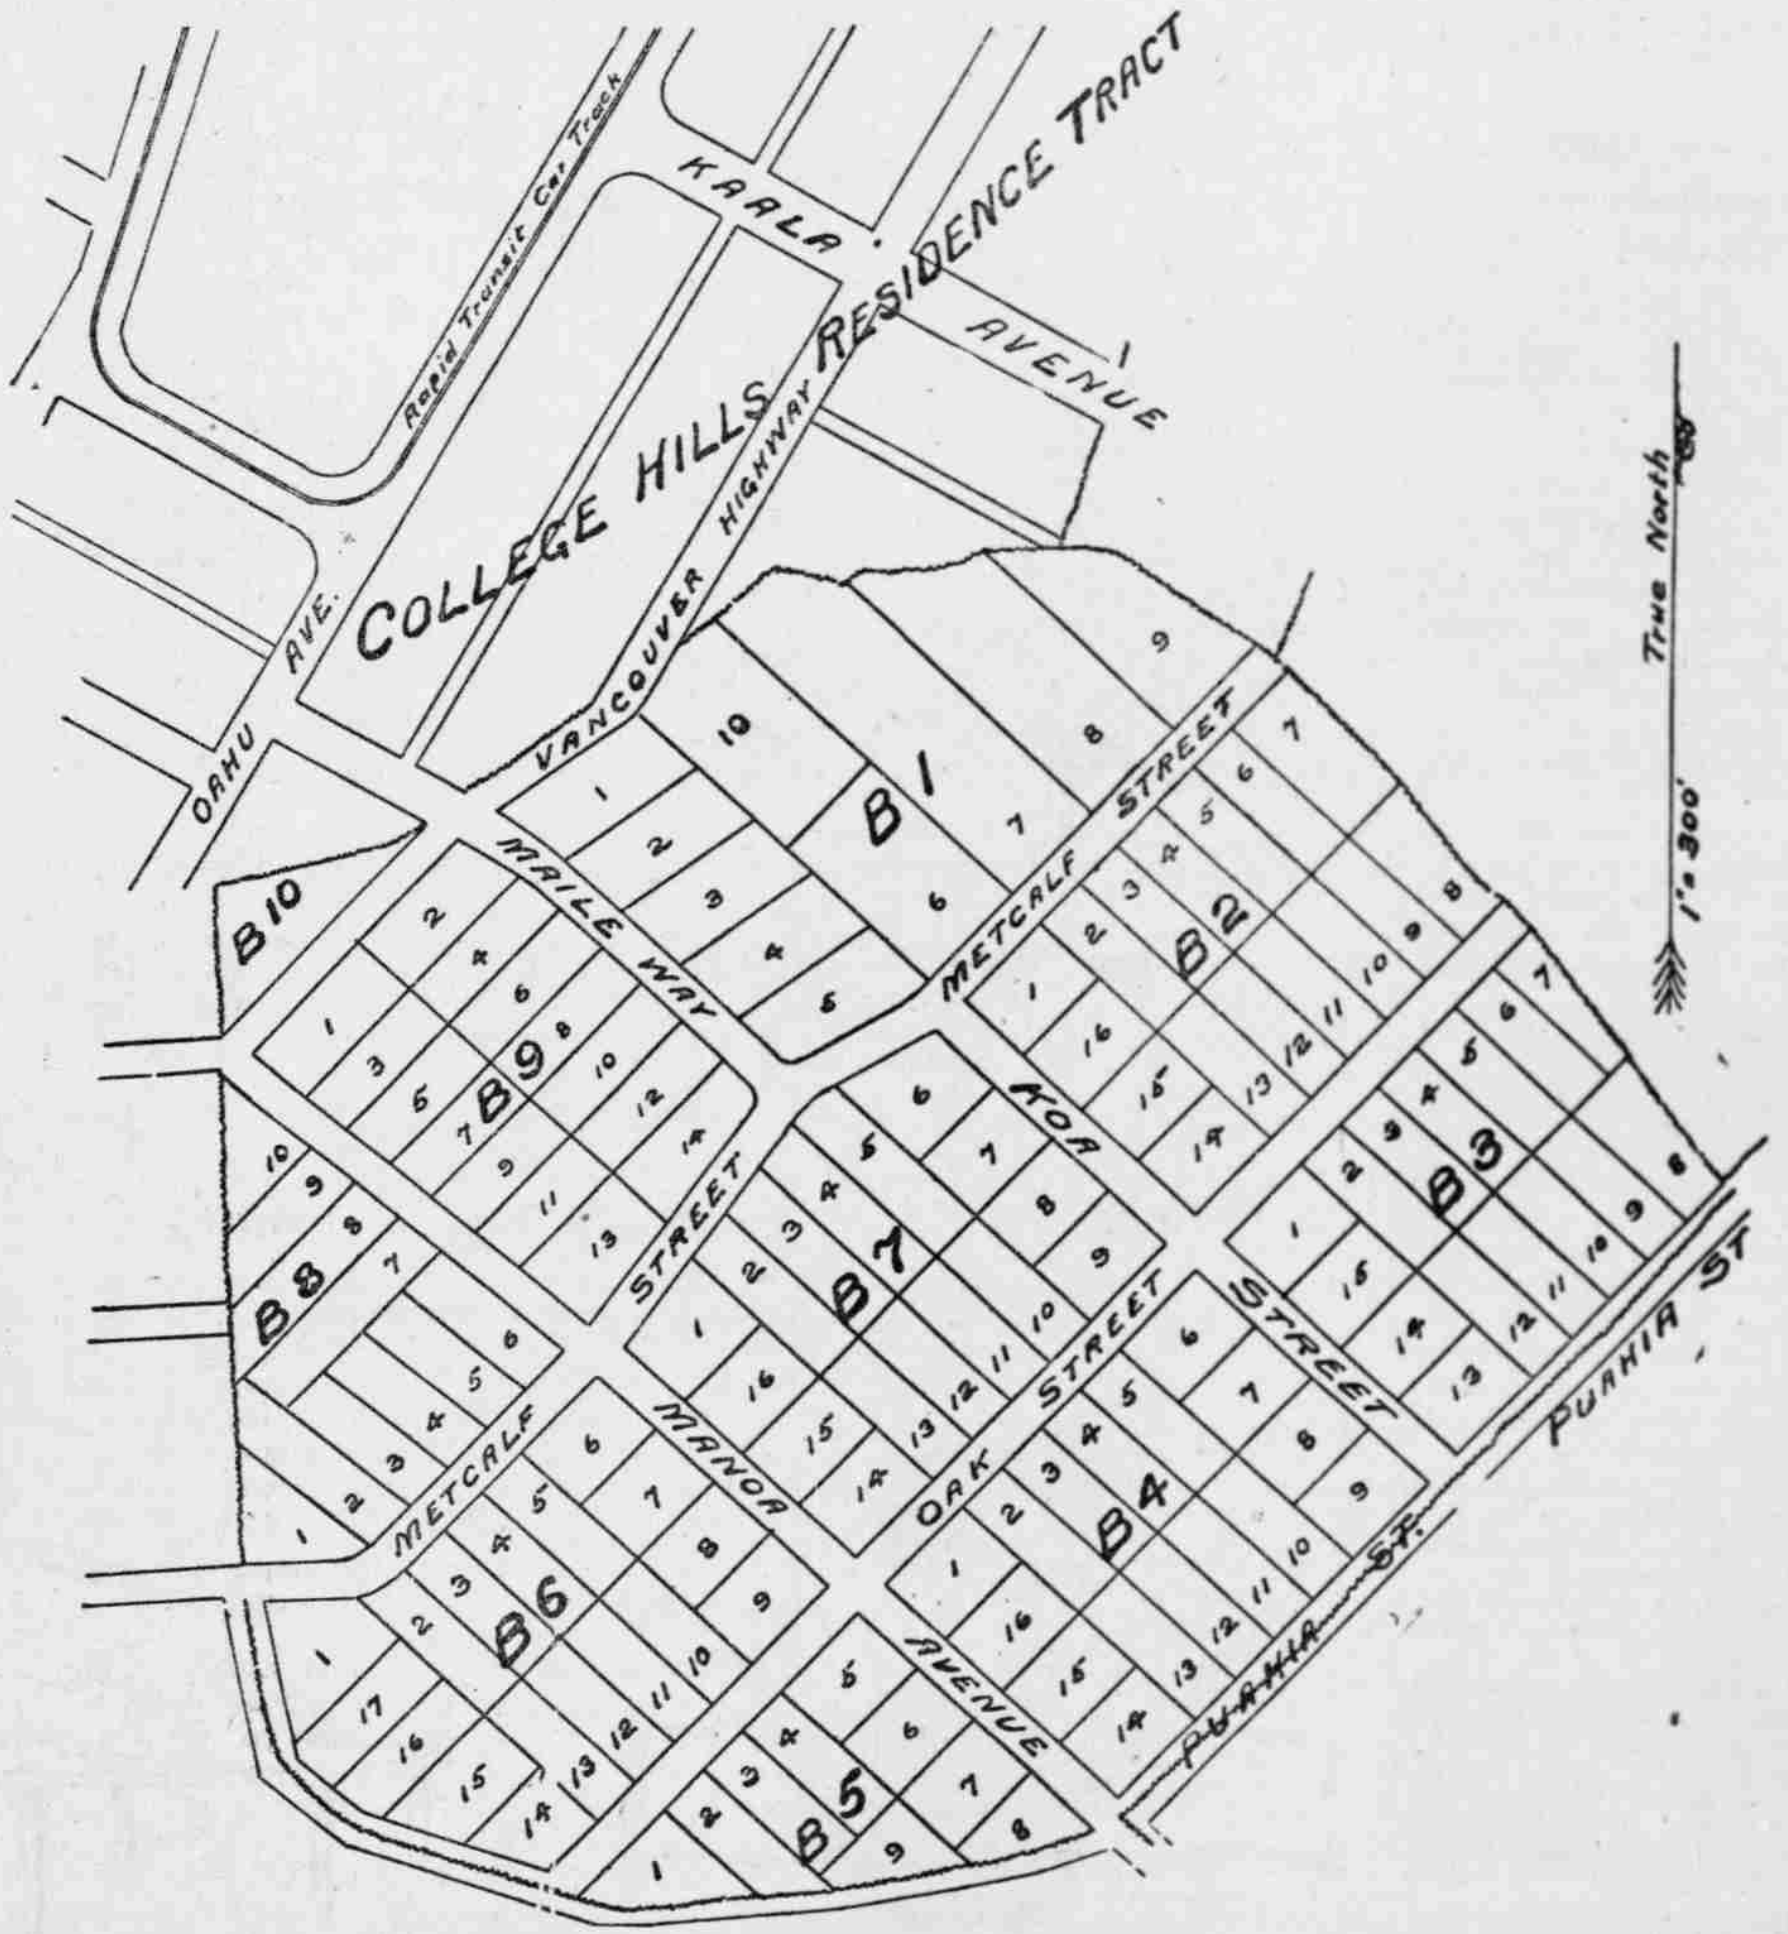

Rev. Edward Thwing, who has been attending the Missionary Conference at Shanghai and the Students' Conference at Tokio, returned on the Doric.

Mrs. George H. Angus, who is now in the East with her husband, with Miss Angus, Mrs. Samuel Johnson, Mrs. J. J. Belser and Mrs. T. E. Wall, were hostesses at the reception given in Los Angeles by the Aloha Patrol from Honolulu. As goes without saying, the ladies acquitted themselves as brilliantly in their role as did the Shriners in the conspicuous part they took in the week's convalescence.

Miss Eva M. Stevens, who has been a member of Bishop Restarick's family for two years, will go to Chicago shortly to study music.

Mrs. C. B. High gave a delightful bridge party at her home in Nuuanu Valley Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Emmet May and Miss Roth. There
